Giving off a winning light

Hotel Spec discovers how Alger-Triton International used custom-made lighting fixtures to create a welcoming, modern design throughout the M Resort in Las Vegas, US.

Driven by a progressive style of architecture infused with rich colours, subtle horizontal lines and finely crafted materials, the M Resort is an inviting blend of warm yet modern design. While incorporating contemporary design and sensual elegance, design firm Marnell Corrao wanted to create an urban resort that would appeal to older and younger generations. With lighting as the key unifying element, the skilled designers and craftsmen at Alger-Triton International carried this vision from conception to completion, building magnificent custom-designed fixtures throughout the vast expanses of the property.

From the main lobby, across the casino floor and throughout the tranquil spa and sublime restaurants, these signature fixtures not only complement their environment – they define them. This statement is most evident in the massive central fixture within the M Bar; a towering eruption of smoke, champagne, and clear glass links suspended from an expanding polished frame.

A commanding presence, this fixture stands at the centre of the resort exuding its vibrant energy to the surrounding interior (and weary guests). As one of only two bars in the resort open 24 hours, M Bar needed a central beacon to attract the nearby gamers, which Alger-Triton delivered.

Serving the same function in a more subtle and refined manner, the central fixture inside the VIP area of the Race & Sports Book anchors the room. The clean, horizontal lines of the ribbed resin column glow with a rich warmth that mirrors the concentric flow of the surrounding interior; offering a comfortable sanctuary from the bustling main floor of the Sports Book.

Departing from the cave-like tradition of most casinos, M Resort steered away from reflective glass and installed skylights on the casino floor allowing natural light to permeate the atmosphere. Alger-Triton utilised this fresh design to accentuate the rich palette of natural materials seen in the fixtures that hover above each gaming table. With illumination as a secondary function, these fixtures exist as pillars of art displaying a juxtaposition of natural wood and molten lava as they glide across the stone ceiling.

Exemplifying the balance between quality product and impeccable design, Alger-Triton International exists at the forefront of the lighting industry with cutting-edge designs and expert craftsmanship. With a solid history of experience, the company's mission is to conceive and to realise distinctive lighting creations for its clientele worldwide utilising exceptional service, driven by design. Drawing on decades of experience with a robust portfolio of international clients, Alger-Triton has built a solid reputation within the global luxury market for its distinctive lighting designs.
